TRAGEDY OF WOMAN WHO SAID SORRY

Coroner not convinced wife meant to kill herself

AN INQUEST into the death of a young woman who was found hanging in her home after starting an affair with a work colleague has recorded an open verdict.

Julie Milligan, of Ardent Road, Dover, was found by her husband, Andrew Milligan, on October 20, 2009.

He told a court he thought his wife was walking down the stairs when he entered the house before realising that the 37-year-old was suspended from the banister.

■ BY JILL HURST

Police said she had typed the word "Sorry" on the couple's computer.

The contract manager said he had only recently agreed to his wife's long request to start a family.

However, Mrs Milligan, who feared she would never have a family, had started an affair with a work colleague, for whom she planned to leave her husband of three years.

Mr Milligan attended the inquest with his wife's parents and brother.

He told the court: "I came home at about 5pm and she was talking to a colleague in the kitchen for five to ten minutes. I did not know him. When he left she asked me to go for a run. She was in her running clothes."

After jogging together, the couple drove back to their home in Ardent Road, when Mr Milligan tried to discuss starting a family.

He says his wife, who worked as a security guard, asked him to give her some space, so he left the house and went for a drive.

Mr Milligan said his wife had suffered a nervous breakdown in

COOL TO BE CURVY

Dover student Lauren Sadler has been voted third in the Star In A Bra competition.

The 18-year-old, a former Dover Grammar School pupil, is currently studying geography at Durham University.

The competition was run with a public vote on Brastop.com and was designed to give more shapely girls a chance to show the world just how good they can look in lingerie.

All the contestants were given a make-over and photoshoot before their photos were put on the website.

Lauren said: "I used to hate bra-shopping, but recently my choice has blossomed, giving me new confidence that I can embrace my curves in lovely lingerie. Some magazines can flaunt skinny models on their front covers, but for me this competition is an amazing opportunity to challenge this unhealthy image. Big boobs are beautiful and curvy women shouldn't hide their figures."

Shake-up may end in tragedy, KCC is warned

BY NICK AMES

DISTRESS caused to elderly residents by a planned shake-up of the care-home system could end in tragedy, Kent County Council has been warned.

Cabinet members agreed at a secret meeting that three homes should be demolished to make way for a new form of sheltered accommodation, and a further four shut completely.

The proposals, which are subject to a four-month consultation, also include the sale of one care-home and a management overhaul of three more.

The care homes earmarked for closure include Sampson Court in Deal, while Cornfields in Dover is set to be demolished and replaced with 'extra-care' social housing that would allow residents to live independently but with carers available 24 hours a day.

The shake-up also affects Wayfarers in Sandwich, which will be sold as a going concern.

KCC says the changes to facilities countywide will save the authority £2 million a year but insists it is also about providing better care and more choice for residents.

However, Unison regional organiser Zoe Van Dyke warned the proposals could have far more dire consequences.

She said: "It's all very well offering people a choice, but do they have to close the facilities they already have to do that?"

"When people have been in homes for some time only for them to be closed, often those residents die because the upheaval is so great.

"I'm sure we'll be mounting a campaign to resist these cuts, and if the families of the people living in these homes would want to work with us, we would happily do that.

"We will be putting alternative proposals and lobbying so these cuts don't happen."

Debbie Wonford, centre manager for Age Concern in Deal, said: "Clearly these plans are going to have an impact and are causing great anxiety among residents and their families.

"It's something we are working closely with KCC about but, sadly, there are cuts going on all across the country. We're talking to the council to see if we can give support in any way to offer day-care services to the residents affected."

KCC's cabinet member for adult social services, Graham Gibbens, said he was confident there were enough places in privately-run care-homes to accommodate residents in those earmarked for closure.

Inspections

Consultation runs until Monday, November 1, with a final decision likely to be made by January next year.

Cllr Gibbens said: "A lot of these homes were built 30 years ago and have come to the end of their useful lives. The homes have good-quality care and all the inspections on them have been good or excellent, but the fact remains we still have elderly people walking down the hallway to use a shared bathroom in the middle of the night.

"I fully understand residents and their friends and families will be concerned, and from now until the consultation period and beyond we will be working closely with them to talk about the type of care that will be most appropriate for them.

"This isn't about casting people aside."

Concerns voiced on footpath litter

CONCERNS have been raised about litter along a route used by pupils of Walmer Science College to and from shops in Dover Road.

Walmer parish councillor Marguerite Beard-Gould has drawn the attention of the district council to the problem, especially on a footpath linking Salisbury Road and Church Street.

She supported a suggestion by one resident that a litter-bin could be installed at the Church Street end and the district council is being asked to try to provide one.

Local PCSO Lisa White said there was also a litter problem in the nearby St Mary's churchyard.

This was now included in her main priority areas in an effort to discourage young people congregating and leaving litter.

Fouled prop yacht is towed to safety

RNLI volunteers were called from their beds in the early hours last Saturday to assist a Dutch yacht stranded in shipping lanes 12 miles off Dover.

The yacht, with four people on board, was travelling in light winds towards Land's End when its propeller became fouled by discarded fishing-net.

Unable to proceed and at risk from the much larger cargo ships passing through the Dover Strait, it was decided to send the lifeboat to assist.

Under the command of deputy coxswain Mark Finnis, City of London II went to the aid of the vessel.

A tow-line was passed to the yacht and the lifeboat began the two-hour passage into Dover Marina.

A posh, old smoothie is all part of the Deal

Town likened to gameshow host

■ BY NICK AMES

IF Deal was a TV personality, it would be gameshow host Nicholas Parsons, at least according to The Guardian newspaper.

The pluses and minus of moving to the town have been discussed in an article by writer Tom Dyckhoff which says property is good value for newcomers – but compares the town to the Sale Of The Century star who was famous for his brightly-coloured blazers.

It also says the stores and amenities have character and the pier receives a great amount of praise – but adds the town is not an easy place to get to and echoes many local concerns that it is not on the high-speed train route.

The article, which was part of the features section, says: "My friend Polly has the hots for Deal. And who wouldn't? It's quite the looker. Rugged, salty-seadog fishermen's cottages, Georgian bow-fronted town-houses for retired admirals, a sweet Dickensian, higgledy-piggledy seafront and two Tudor castles on the beach.

"If Deal were a person, it'd be Nicholas Parsons: old, a bit posh, quite the smoothie.

QUITE THE LOOKER: Deal has been compared to TV and radio star Nicholas Parsons in an article in The Guardian Polly's been looking to cast off the old fella, London, and she may have found quite the chap. Me? I love piers; I love post-war architecture."

Sadly, the article has some minuses as well. It goes and to say: "The wife hates it: 'It's just so dreary. It feels like the 50s, in a bad, ration-book way.' She may just have been in a mood that day, though you can sort of see her point.

Plus the high street is v glum: could do with new blood, more independents, etc."

The article adds: "Stuck out on a bulge all alone, it's not even much helped by the new high-speed rail: a slowww one hour 40 to London St Pancras... and, though it's only 15 miles away, a lifetime to Canterbury."

previous years but there was no sign she would take her own life.

He would later learn Mrs Milligan had been having a relationship with the man she was talking to in their kitchen and they had plotted to run away together.

Giving evidence, Detective Superintendent Julie Richards said investigators had found no evidence of foul play. She said a note was found on the couple's computer that simply said "Sorry".

Recording the open verdict, coroner Rachel Redman said she could not rule out the possibility that Mrs Milligan was making a cry for help, thinking that she would be discovered sooner.

She said she was not sure beyond reasonable doubt that Julie Milligan had intended to kill herself on October 20, 2009.

She conveyed her sincere condolences to the family.

Duo sail on to board at port

TWO new members have been appointed to the board that runs the Port of Dover.

Dover Harbour Board says it is delighted that Jeffrey Hume and Chris Green have taken up the non-executive posts.

Mr Hume is a former finance director at a number of companies, including TDG, a European logistics business; Alfred McAlpine; and Howden Group, as well as holding several key finance positions within Hawker Siddeley Group.

His non-executive roles include directorships at Heath Lambert Group and Hyder Consulting.

Mr Hume is also a member of the London Stock Exchange Primary Markets Group, which represents market-makers, City professionals and listed companies.

Mr Green joins following a career in the transport industry, having held numerous senior positions within the railway sector, including chief executive of Virgin Trains, managing director of ScotRail during its preparations for privatisation and managing director of InterCity.

Board chairman Roger Mountford said: "Jeffrey and Chris bring an excellent combination of skills and experience which will be invaluable in supporting the board through an exciting if challenging period of change."

Couple's DVT misery makes national news

THE health risk of deep vein thrombosis is being highlighted by a national newspaper following the experiences of a Deal couple.

The Daily Mail featured an investigation into the condition often associated with long-haul flights. It reveals what happened to Paul and Sarah Tyler after a flight to the US.

"My blood runs cold to think what might have happened if I hadn't dialled 999," Sarah Taylor said of the moment she discovered her husband, Paul, collapsed on the sofa.

The story states: "Despite his protests she was being melodramatic, she insisted on calling an ambulance.

"It saved his life – for, although Paul had only felt mildly unwell for a few hours, he could have died. The cause? A long-haul flight.

"It was the night of the couple's joint 40th birthday party in July 2008, not long after they'd returned from a holiday to Las Vegas – a birthday treat to themselves."

After the party, they had taken a cab back to Deal, said the paper.

Paul, who runs his own marketing and design agency, had been feeling unwell for most of the day.

The story continues: "At the party, a few people commented he kept holding his side, as if he'd pulled a muscle.

"I'd felt exhausted and breathless for hours before the party, and my left leg and foot ached with a dull, intense pain," he recalls. As the evening wore on, however, "it became painful to breathe and I had an intense muscular-type pain in my torso".

"Back at the cottage after Sarah had gone to bed, Paul stumbled and fell as he tried to climb the stairs. 'I remember thinking he'd had too much to drink,' says Sarah, a global operations director for a marketing company, 'even though we'd only had a few glasses of champagne all night'.

Clasping

"But when Sarah went back to check on him, she found Paul on the sofa, clasping his arm to his left side. The couple were later told that had Paul remained there, he might well have not woken up."

When the ambulance arrived, the paramedics checked Paul's blood pressure, which was low, as well as the oxygen levels in his blood.

A paramedic asked if they had been away because they looked tanned and he suspected that Paul had had a pulmonary embolism.

This is where a blood-clot has formed in a deep-lying vein in the leg and broken free from the vein wall.

Agencies unite for safety blitz

BY NICK AMES

MORE than 100 motorists were dealt with over a range of offences during a week-long multi-agency operation in east Kent.

From June 14-20, police joined forces with Dover District Council, Trading Standards and the UK Border Agency to tackle concerns raised by residents, including the antisocial and illegal use of vehicles.

The south Kent motorcycle unit spoke to bikers who regularly congregate at cafés and ride a circuit that includes the A2, A256, A258, Sandwich, Ash, Hacklinge and Wingham.

The focus was on promoting safety and also on responding to the volume of complaints about antisocial riding, particularly on Wednesday evenings and Sundays.

Acting Inspector Guy Thompson, of the Dover Neighbourhood Team, said: "Officers have been targeting issues raised by the community. We have identified those issues with our agency partners and taken action. Reducing deaths and serious injuries on our roads is a priority and we are reminding people to reduce speed, wear a seat-belt and not use a mobile telephone while driving."

Speed enforcement action was taken in Alkham, River, Temple Ewell, Deal, Walmer, Hacklinge, Wingham, Eastry, Densole and Dover. Police seized 14 vehicles for no insurance and other offences, while six people were given £200 fixed-penalty tickets and three points on their licence for not having insurance.

One man was arrested in Bowling Green Lane, Deal, for suspected drink-driving. Police named him as 36-year-old Leo Boseman, of Freemans Way, Deal.

He was charged with driving with excess alcohol and having no insurance. He was bailed to appear in Folkestone court on Friday.

In other incidents, a motorcyclist was dealt with for pulling a wheelie along the A258; seven people were given £60 penalty tickets for not wearing seat-belts; and a foreign-registered lorry was given a £200 graduated fixed penalty for overtaking up the hill on the A20 between Aycliffe and Capel-le-Ferne.

ONSIDE: You don't need to have played at a high level to be a good football coach, according to Rob Udberg

Coach Rob plays to win at the peak of his game

ALMOST all football coaches have one thing in common – they first played the game themselves – but one 28-year-old in Canterbury is working to break down the stereotype.

As a player, Rob Udberg never made it past the Whitley Bay youth sides and his attention turned to coaching.

In 2006, aged 24, he became one of the youngest people to achieve the respected UEFA 'A' Licence.

His classmates on the course included Roy Keane and Peter Beardsley, while his room-mate was Ricki Herbert, who has spent the last three weeks at the World Cup as New Zealand's head coach.

"In this country there has been a stigma attached to coaches that haven't played," he said.

"I can understand why, but it doesn't mean they aren't going to be a fantastic coach.

"A lot of great film directors were never great actors, but they know what they want to create and can direct the people to do what they want to do.

"To me, that's no different from the role of a coach."

Udberg, who played for Faversham Town, Sittingbourne and Ashford Town, is now employed by Chelsea to run a two-year BTEC course for teenagers at the Elite Boys' Academy in Canterbury, which combines coaching and training with academic study.

Sailor is rescued in synchronised effort

A CHINESE sailor was rescued by the Dover lifeboat after suffering head injuries in an accident on board a ship.

While working on a cargo ship travelling through the Dover Strait, the crew-member sustained the serious injury after falling from a shipping container on to the deck.

The Dover lifeboat crew was called into action and within 12 minutes City of London II proceeded to rendezvous with the 260-metre, 39,000-tonne Singaporean-registered ship.

Two lifeboat-crew-members trained in first-aid went aboard the ship and assessed and treated the casualty, who was suffering from jaw and leg injuries.

Hospital

The severity of his injuries dictated that he needed urgent hospital treatment and the decision was made to transfer him to the lifeboat and then for him to be winched aboard the Coast-guard helicopter, from Lee-on-Solent.

This relay of rescue resources would ensure the injured man reached hospital as quickly as possible.

Once on one of the lifeboat's stretchers the man, who worked as a cook, was taken on to the waiting lifeboat.

Another member of the crew went to assist his injured colleague as a translator.

The injured man was then flown directly to the QEQM Hospital in Margate after the incident, which took place on Sunday, June 6.

Dover coxswain Stuart Richardson said of the operation: "A successful shout with all agencies working well together and the lifeboat crew putting all their training to use."

DOVER has an answer to Monty Python's famous question "What have the Romans ever done for us?"

The cult movie Life of Brian answered the query with a list of benefits to the people of Judea, from clean water to safe streets.

And visitors to a backstreet site in the centre of the town can see the fruits of civilisation that the legions brought to Kent.

The Roman Painted House, regarded as possibly the finest Roman House on show in Britain, was discovered by the Kent Archaeological Rescue Unit in 1970.

This year's 40th anniversary will see many of the original archaeologists gathering together to celebrate the event.

Brian Philip was one of the people who excavated the original site.

"It is an amazingly well-preserved building and gives us an example of the way of life in Britain under Empire," he said.

"This was a residence for the higher echelons of society, visiting dignitaries and we have some evidence that an emperor – Lucius Septimius Severus – even stayed here.

"The wall decorations and the heating showed how civilised the inhabitants were. It is one of the best examples of a building of its time anywhere in northern Europe."

A total of more than two decades of excavation across ancient Dover by the unit have uncovered 50 major structures, all of which have been reburied.

The Painted House was the best preserved and is now a major tourist attraction.

Built about AD200, it formed part of a large mansion or official hotel for travellers crossing the Channel.

It stood outside the great naval fort of the Classis Britannica, but in AD 270 it was demolished by the Roman army during the construction of a larger fort.

Three of its main rooms were then buried substantially intact under its ramparts. Burial

40 YEARS ON: Model of the Roman Painted House that was unearthed in 1970

Roman building that painted an historic picture by the army resulted in the unique survival of more than 400 sq ft of painted plaster, the most extensive ever found north of the Alps.

Visitors can still see an architectural scheme of many coloured panels framed by fluted columns. The columns sit on projecting bases above a stage, producing a clear 3D effect. Parts of 26 panels survive, each with a motif relating to Bacchus, the Roman god of wine.

Models of the town and relics and recreations of its Roman heritage are also on display within the site of the villa.

QUESTION & ANSWER

MATT HEALEY

Picture: WWW.KINGSWOOD.CO.UK

Q Can you tell us about the centre? What is its history?

A Grosvenor Hall has been many things in its lifetime. It was originally a country home for a wealthy industrialist, then a sanatorium for the care of TB sufferers. It then became a Police Training College and subsequently has passed to the Education Travel Group, who refurbished it for use as a Kingswood Education and Adventure Centre.

Q Has it been a difficult process transforming it into a place suitable for children rather than police trainees?

A The process has been a labour of love for the project team and although much of the centre was purpose-built for the education and training field, it has taken a lot of time and effort to bring the centre up to a standard that is unsurpassed in the field of residential activity centres in the UK.

Q How did you first become involved with work in the field of educational activity?

A I first became involved in outdoor education and activity delivery in 1987 after growing up in the Lake District and being involved in outdoor and adventure pursuits since I was very young. Over the years I have worked in a secondary school, for two international charities and in a local-authority residential centre, all delivering outdoor and adventurous learning to young people of many differing backgrounds.

Q How many groups of children do you expect to use Grosvenor Hall? What are the sorts of things they get involved in when they are there?

A We expect literally thousands of young people to use Grosvenor Hall as individuals, or as members of groups, from a diverse set of backgrounds and educational needs, all requesting activity choices from across our wide menu. We deliver courses on English as a foreign language, programmes on environmental science and other areas that link into the National Curriculum at key stages 2 and 3. Of course we also provide some fantastic activities, too; for example, our state-of-the-art high-ropes course – that is unique in the UK – and our 3G swing, climbing wall, swimming and scuba pool, not to mention our disco, media centre, laser-quest arena and cinema.

Q Can you tell us a bit about Kingswood – who now owns and runs the centre?

A Kingswood is a major provider of educative residential programmes. As an organisation we have seven other centres in the UK and France and we are expanding to meet the demands of our increasing customer base. Kingswood has been delivering courses to young people for more than 30 years.

Q What would you say is your personal favourite activity to take part in?

A I would be lying if I didn't concede that I love the ropes courses and climbing walls we have here on site. Not only are they tremendous fun, but they allow for young people to learn more about themselves and others by sharing experiences and challenges to achieve things they didn't know they were capable of. A number of teachers have come to me in the last few months to tell me these activities have changed the lives of the people they bring to us.

Q How do you see the development of Grosvenor Hall?

A Grosvenor Hall will be doubling its capacity over the next year. This will mean that opportunities for employment at the centre will increase, as well as allowing us to build on the already strong relationships with local schools and community groups.

Q If you did not have the career you have now, what other field would you like to have been involved in?

A If I could have my time again, I honestly believe that I would still be working as an advocate for young people and their right to learn about themselves and others in a way that is stimulating and exciting. After almost 25 years following my career, I am as enthusiastic about continuing to provide the powerful results that outdoor and activity-based education provides young people as I was as an instructor running my first, faltering, session. I think it is so important to provide opportunities to educate our children in a style that is exciting, challenging and rewarding for them.

Kash in on energy tips for your home

PEOPLE can get free advice and support on how to improve the energy-efficiency of their homes as a result of the Kent Action to Save Heat (KASH) scheme.

The project, established by a partnership of 11 local authorities, aims to provide free, impartial advice on all energy-saving measures.

This ranges from grants and discounts for loft- and cavity wall-insulation to advice and assistance with central-heating and renewable technologies.

Kent Energy Efficiency Partnership set up the scheme. Spokeswoman Louise Shrubsole said: "We want to help residents save money through energy-saving improvements. Loft- and cavity-wall insulation can save the average household up to £260 a year.

"We also want to make Kent a truly sustainable place to live and work. Kash is a simple service that provides free support to residents and we would encourage as many people as possible to make use of it."

Norfolkline sell-off

THE European Commission has granted approval for Danish ferry-operator DFDS to buy Norfolkline, which operates services from Dover.

Previous owner Maersk still has a 31 per cent stake after the £300 million deal, but it is expected the company will eventually sell the shares after an agreed period of two years.

Neither DFDS nor Norfolkline, which operates a cross-Channel service to Dunkerque, as well as Irish and North Sea routes, has offered any news of job cuts or changes in services.

Never was so much ode to so few, says Epitaph poet

■ BY NICK AMES

WRITER Michael Kendrick has spent the last 30 years talking to the Battle of Britain heroes of Fighter Command and transforming their thoughts, ideals, memories and aspirations into verse.

His book – Epitaph For The Few – is now available at the Battle of Britain Memorial on the cliffs at Capel-le-Ferne in time for the 70th anniversary of the conflict in which the Luftwaffe was defeated in the skies over Kent, preventing a planned Nazi invasion.

Mr Kendrick has also raised funds for the monument dedicated to the battle on the banks of the River Thames in London.

His book is dedicated to RAF ace 'Bunny' Currant, who contacted the writer after coming across some of his poetry.

"A relative of mine was Great War poet Arthur Newberry Choyce," said Mr Kendrick. "From early teens I have written poetry on various subjects, including the two world wars, and many have been published. In 1980 one of the 1940s greats, Bunny, got in touch and introduced me to his pals in The Few. They befriended me and in turn I was privileged to write their poems – tailored to individual request.

"Most biographical poems in my book were from personal friendships and each person received their individual lines, signed by Dame Vera Lynn and myself. Other poems reflect my study and feel for the subject."

Mr Kendrick's debut book about the First World War followed some of the first volunteers who joined the British Army in 1914.

Fifty Good Men And True was selected to be part of the National Archives because of its depth of research and value to others studying the subject. A follow-up, Sons And Daughters, was also granted the same accolade.

The Battle of Britain work is dedicated to Bunny – who sadly died after suffering a fall just two months before it was published. Wing Commander Christopher Currant, DSO, DFC and Bar was described as "a most courageous pilot and brilliant leader" during one of his citations for shooting down enemy aircraft.

"I dedicated the book to him," said Mr Kendrick. "It's the only anthology of poems dedicated to the aircrew that fought in Britain's most pivotal and crucial battle. My poems reveal just what I think of their sacrifice, bravery, dedication and skill."

The book is available, priced £9.99, from the Capel-le-Ferne memorial and the Battle of Britain Museum at Hawkinge.

It can also be bought, dedicated and signed on request by sending a cheque for £10 to Michael Kendrick, Holly Croft, 266 Forest Road, Old Woodhouse, near Loughborough, Leicestershire, LE12 8UA.

Theatre is renamed after drama-teacher

A DRAMA-TEACHER'S life was celebrated when students and staff at Brockhill Park named a theatre in his honour.

Peter Catmull, right, assistant principal and drama-teacher at the performing arts college in Saltwood, died in February after a long illness.

The tribute on Tuesday last week included drama, dance and music from past and present students.

The theatre was renamed the Peter Catmull Theatre, and there was a chance to walk around the redesigned memorial garden. Proceeds of the event will go to Cancer Research.

Zoo outing a treat for school starters

CHILDREN starting school in September enjoyed a day out at Port Lympne Wild Animal Park for the Shepway Starts School Transition Day.

Hosted by the extended schools team at Kent County Council, the event on Monday included workshops and activities for under-fives and their families.

The arts activities were funded by Shepway Find Your Talent, which encourages young people to participate in cultural activities, and run by the Creative Foundation, in partnership with Kent County Council.

Charity teaches pupils the skills that could save a life

■ BY JAMES ALEXANDRE

PUPILS at the Marsh Academy learned some valuable life-saving skills when they took part in the British Heart Foundation's Heartstart programme.

With instruction from community resuscitation development officer Mike Dadd, they were trained how to keep someone alive in an emergency situation until professional help arrives.

As part of the course, students watched a short film about first-aid and CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) before learning how to deal with an unconscious patient.

They then had the chance to practise their CPR skills on mannequins, which they found both valuable and exhausting.

Recovery

The Heartstart programme includes skills such as assessing an unconscious patient, performing CPR, dealing with choking and serious bleeding and helping someone who may be having a heart attack.

The Heartstart course lasts two hours, provides practical hands-on learning and is free and open to the public.

Young people of 10 years and over can attend a Heartstart course, but some skills like making a 999 call or placing someone in the recovery position can be learned by much younger children.

Health-and-social-care-teacher Maureen Haggie said: "The Heartstart initiative is a valuable enrichment activity for our health

"We are very grateful to the British Heart Foundation for delivering the training."

More than 2.3 million people have already been trained through the Heartstart initiative. To find out about the course and where to train, go to www.bhf.org.uk.

The 58 victims of 'snakehead' greed recalled on anniversary

■ BY NICK AMES

A COMMEMORATION for the 58 Chinese people who died in a lorry ten years ago has taken place on Dover seafront.

The event marked not just the victims and their families but also those involved from the emergency services, the police and the immigration service who had to deal with this unprecedented tragedy.

Speaking after the service, Ben Bano, who organised it, said: "It was important to mark the tenth anniversary of this tragedy.

"The service was well attended by both local people and representatives of the services which had to deal with this terrible incident.

"This was also an opportunity to remember all the victims of human-traffickers who continue to exploit vulnerable people worldwide."

During the commemoration, the Mayor of Dover, Sue Jones, laid flowers at the memorial plaque, which was erected for those who lost their lives.

The tragedy took place on June 18, 2000, when the victims suffocated in a lorry on its way by ferry to Dover.

Perry Wacker, a 33-year-old Dutch lorry-driver, was jailed for 14 years for manslaughter after it emerged that after boarding the ferry at Zeebrugge for the five-hour crossing he had deliberately shut off the only air-vent to stop noise from filtering out on the hottest night of the year.

At Dover, Wacker's Mercedes-Benz truck was opened up by customs officers. They discovered corpses littering the cramped container. Most of the victims had torn off their clothes, while others had tried to claw their way out. Two had survived, though they were barely alive. During subsequent investigations, it emerged that most of the victims had paid up to £20,000 to end up in the back of Wacker's lorry.

With 60 people crammed inside, the so-called 'snakehead' human-trafficking gang had collected £1.2 million from the human cargo. Wacker's cut was £500 for each person he successfully delivered – a potential payout of £30,000.

Shared-services director Reed 'excited' by £90K-a-year post

A DIRECTOR has been appointed for the shared-services proposal that will affect Dover, Thanet and Canterbury.

The plans will see three east Kent councils combine services in a bid to save money – even though the new appointment will entail a salary of between £90,000 and £100,000 a year.

Donna Reed, Thanet council's director of customer services and business transformation, will become the project's shared-services director next month.

She was chosen unanimously by the leaders and chief executives of all three councils.

Ms Reed has worked at Thanet council for seven years, initially as head of the customer services department and more recently as director of customer services and business transformation. Previously she has had roles at the Chartered Institute Of Public Finance And Accountancy and Kent County Council.

She said: "I'm delighted to be heading up this ground-breaking project. It's an exciting challenge, bringing together the services of three councils and ensuring we deliver value for money and the best possible service."

Thanet council chief executive Richard Samuel said: "The selection process was extremely tough, as you would expect for such an important role, and all three leaders and chief executives were unanimous in their choice. We have no doubt Donna will do a superb job."

SO DELIGHTED: Donna Reed

NEWS IN BRIEF

Forum will be a tidy event

A DOVER North Neighbourhood Forum meeting takes place today (Wednesday) at Elvington community centre from 7pm.

The meeting will discuss keeping the area's villages tidy.

Residents are invited to discuss any issues connected to waste, litter and flytipping, and the can talk to members and officers from the county and district councils.

Representatives from waste services, environmental health and community development and KCC wardens will also attend.

Cash boost for play areas

TWO local play spaces are to be given a new lease of life with a funding boost.

Kent County Council has been handed £1,166,707 to develop 24 play areas for eight- to 13-year-olds across the county.

Victoria Park in Deal and Fowlmead country park, on the Deal to Sandwich road, are two of the beneficiaries.

The cash comes through the Government's Playbuilder scheme and is distributed by KCC after bids from voluntary groups, parish and district councils.

Sarah Hohler, cabinet member for children, families and education, said: "It's important that all children and young people have the chance to access a safe place to play with their friends.

"The grant means play areas can have new equipment and allow local councils and voluntary groups to make their play areas a much more interesting and fun place to visit."

Sycophantic show from our new MP

So I see our new MP has elsewhere merely parroted, sycophantically, his Chancellor's line over the Budget, despite Folkestone having some of the most deprived wards in Kent and the South East.

At least the two Thanet Tory MPs lodged immediate objections to the plan to only give money for new business starts in the north.

This area, even with Roger DeHaan's plans, needs help now, not in five years' time or whenever.

Meanwhile, the 'tough but fair' line is now exposed for the sham it really is, with those at the top getting off easier than those the bottom.

The rise in VAT to 20 per cent, along with the savage attacks on benefits – and worse after the pensions secretary's recent near-'abrecht macht frei' (work makes you free) comment – will force many into penury and misery as they await low-paid jobs of which there are few even for the able-minded or bodied.

Decent 'living waged jobs' will be few and far between, even with the proposed tax-allowance rises.

Further, the useless Trident nuclear missiles and two aircraft-carriers, costing well over £100 billion, remain financially ring-fenced and little has been done about tax evasion, of which Customs reckon they are still owed £28 billion.

It is surely not too late to close the tax loopholes for the rich, increase the bank levy and switch the Trident money to ring-fence benefits as they are, and still have enough to instigate the Green New Deal.

This, at just £45bn, would start to provide jobs in the renewables-tech, transport and social-housing sectors, so providing decent incomes and thus taxes to pay off the deficit caused not by ordinary people, but by stockbrokers, bankers and fat-cat bosses.

How LibDem MPs can face their constituents I do not know, though at least their activists can, I hope, tell them of their folly.

Finally, however, I hear the Green Party is to set up in Shepway, so I suggest all disaffected Labour and LibDem supporters switch there now as they are the only remaining progressive party in the UK.

Armchair critic has his facts all wrong

Sadly one is forced to respond, although one could hope Ian Macmillan (last week's letters) would put a sock in it.

He rants like the armchair wizard he must think he is.

When it comes to the Falklands, he is totally ignorant and should go back to school. And stop insulting the memories of those who died protecting British people.

your blogger

Ed Hill explains why this World Cup is only fruitful in one area – his own back garden...

TOMATOES 1 – WORLD CUP 0

I AM not a football fanatic, unlike a friend of mine who spends the whole season going to every game Bury FC play.

He once spent 10 hours on one journey trying to make it to a fixture against Torquay only to discover the game had been rained off. Such dedication is admirable, but the beautiful game is not that beautiful to me (particularly when Bury play it).

However, I do look forward to the World Cup. It is great to come home from work, switch on the telly and find there is something to watch other than Eggheads.

World Cup results may be hard to predict, but Eggheads certainly isn't. Every episode Dermot Murnaghan says "Can the brains of the challengers defeat something money cannot buy – the reputation of our Eggheads, each one of whom has won countless national competitions in general knowledge?"

In a word, no.

The ever-present Daphne means there can only ever be one outcome. She may look like a sweet old lady, but she has the clinical skills of Ronaldo when it comes to finishing off the countless teams of pub-league quizzers and mates from work who can't even get the right answer to 'Who wrote Alice in Wonderland?'.

Was it: Carl Lewis, Lewis Carroll or Lewis Collins, who played Bodie in The Professionals?

This summer I was looking forward to putting my feet up and opening a can of Tesco value lager, ready to be wowed by a festival of football skills from the world's greatest players... and Emile Heskey.

But for some reason I have been underwhelmed by the whole thing. Experts say the problem is that all the teams are good these days. Even the lowliest footballing nation can outwit the brilliance of Brazil with a well-organised defence.

But it's not just that. What has happened to all the natural flair and flamboyance the African teams were going to bring to the party?

Drubbing

Even when there has been a flood of goals, it hasn't brought any joy. Each time Portugal slammed another goal during their 7-0 drubbing of North Korea, all I could hear in my head was the sound of shots ringing out from the Supreme Leader's palace in Pyongyang as Kim Jong-il dispensed justice to the players' families.

During the England games I have drifted off and found myself worrying about whether I have forgotten to pay the council tax again.

No, this year most of my attention is on the 11 members of my own team whom I am coaching to produce a spectacular performance.

I expect a bumper crop from my tomato plants: talented newcomers nurtured on the playing field of my garden, promoted to the premier league atmosphere of the greenhouse.

Not least the more than 300 who have lost their lives in Afghanistan alone.

If he knew the real facts behind the British Falklands presence, maybe he'd learn something, but such people fail to learn and actually contribute to conflict.

Mr Macmillan fails to realise that the islanders have the right of self-determination and are far more British than millions who where born here or presently live in his England.

Had he any notion of Falklands reality he could maybe comment, but as one who has lived there, I can only say, to be polite: "Put a sock in it and rest your pen".

There is a simple answer, Mr Macmillan: allow terrorists, dictators and so on to wage war in the England you want. And maybe later you can pick up the pieces.

I have lived in these lands and served my country so have greater right to express myself than some armchair pundit.

If there was ever a service that warrants more, it's our soldiers. So, rather than slander their name, button it, as millions would say.

Derek R Packham
Deal

But where does this leave the estimated 36,600 households in Kent wanting social housing?

Excessive cuts in local-government spending and in housing are planned. The coalition said it would protect front-line services.

Isn't housing a major social need?

There are 22,000 empty homes in Kent and Medway, out of one million homes empty in the UK.

With persistently empty retail and other commercial premises, and long-vacant industrial estates, it is possible to meet Kent and Medway's housing needs without building on greenfield sites.

Despite housing need, the new government refuses to ring-fence spending on housing, just like the previous government.

The Green Party believes decent, affordable housing is an entitlement and basic human need.

Providing energy-efficient, dry and sound homes would employ people in every part of Kent and Medway. But not one council in Kent has made significant progress with its empty homes and sites since 1997, either.

Steve Dawe
Kent Green Party

so-called public servants are merely apparatchiks building their personal empires on whatsoever is flavour of the month, and blow the public.

Their salaries should reflect their true worth – zero in the real world.

As for Kent County Council social services, its policy of enablement will be epitomised by 'if your granny can get down to the corner-shop using her zimmer frame and it takes her all day to do it, she's enabled and doesn't need anyone to do her shopping'.

Sooner the cull of these wasters begins, the better.

One council runs all would be big saver

The question I ask is: does Kent need local councils at all?

Could not Kent County Council run all local services?

Just think of the savings made.

There would be less staff (savings in pay and pensions) and a cash windfall from the sale of buildings.

Disabled children gain from Enable Sport

While football fever swept the nation, a charity announced that it had additional funding to support disabled children in the South East with donations of specialist sports equipment and wants families to apply.

The Enable Sport initiative provides donations of specialist sports equipment for disabled children engaged in competitive sport and has already helped children across the UK with donations of football-powerchairs, racing-wheelchairs, javelins and even ice-skates.

Now, thanks to additional funding from Barclays Wealth bank, the charity is scouring the region for children who want to progress in sport and could benefit from a donation.

There are thousands of disabled children out there who may not be reaching their sporting potential because the equipment they need is just too expensive, with wheelchairs potentially costing thousands.

Launched by children's charity Caudwell Children, the Enable Sport initiative was created to remove some of the financial barriers that families caring for a disabled child face.

Sport has a lot of health and social benefits for children and we believe every child should have the opportunity to reach their potential.

The difference for a disabled child is the additional equipment they need could be out of reach for a lot of parents and preventing them taking part – we want to help families overcome this barrier.

The Enable Sport initiative is open to any disabled child aged 18 or under and donations can be made to individuals for any competitive sport.

For further information, phone Caudwell Children on 0845 300 1348 or visit the Enable Sport page on Facebook.

Tenants not given a second thought

Congratulations to Maureen Thoroughgood for her outspoken and very true letter last week.

Here in Dover we tenants are also being treated with contempt.

We are supposed to have tenant participation, but we do not even have access to the so-called 'tenant's' newsletter run and edited by Dover District Council.

We are not allowed to know what is being said on our behalf at meetings and the true results of tenant elections are not even being published.

The previous cabinet portfolio holder for housing reportedly referred to tenants as "nit-pickers" in an email to another councillor.

Ms Thoroughgood is quite right – things here in Dover are also being done to benefit the few, not the whole community.

Will new Prime Minister David Cameron allow the electorate a voice, or will we continue to be given the mushroom management treatment by his appalling feudal party?

Affordable housing must not be reduced

It is good news that the arbitrary regional housing target for the South East is to be abolished.

Why more are starting to count their chickens

■ BY JANE CONNOLLY

MORE people in Kent are striving for the good life as the popularity of amateur poultry-keeping continues to rise.

Growing demand for ethical, free-range and organic produce has really ruffled feathers in the food industry as the nation's consumers have become more discerning about what makes it on to their plates.

Many have even taken matters into their own hands by turning back gardens and allotments into their own personal food-factories.

According to Simon Broad, owner of Broadfeed equine and pet supplies in Tunbridge Wells, the county has been no exception to the national rule.

"The popularity of keeping chickens has exploded in the last three or four years," he said. "Keeping poultry in the back garden is not new. Going back to wartime, I should think most people with a decent-sized garden would have kept them for eggs and meat."

"With the rise of supermarkets and convenience stores, it died off. But over the last five to ten years, people have become more aware of where their food comes from and are looking for a return to the good life."

The business has been running 26 years, so Broadfeed staff have been well placed to notice changing trends.

As poultry-keeping becomes more popular, Mr Broad has been helping a variety of people take their first steps into animal husbandry.

"Many keep them for eggs, so it's the same as keeping a pet. I would say the vast majority are complete novices and that's where we can help," he said.

"If your garden is big enough for a rabbit, it's big enough for a chicken. In that sort of space, you would use an ark and the more space you can give it, the better its life will be."

Collecting up the free eggs, with the knowledge they have been laid by happy hens is not the only reward. Mr Broad believes that chickens make fun and educational pets for children, with greater appeal than more traditional choices.

"They are perfect in that they give children responsibility. They are better than rabbits because they are more interactive and interesting."

"You can stand and watch chickens for hours. They are busy all day, scratching around and picking things up."

Channel swim tribute to young driving star

STUDENTS at the school attended by racing-driver Henry Surtees, who died in a crash in July last year, have completed a memorial cross-Channel swim to raise funds for charities.

Mr Surtees, 18, had just finished his A-levels at Worth School, West Sussex, when he died in a crash during a Formula Two race at Brands Hatch last year.

The team consisted of Nick Elvidge, Nick Gandy, Rory Pickard, Ben Clyde-Smith, Sasha Richards and reserve team member Raphael Gruber.

The team, setting off from Dover, swam the 21-mile relay event in 13 hours and 13 minutes.

The swimmers want to raise £15,000 for the Sussex Air Ambulance, the chosen charity of Henry's family, and Headway, which improves life after brain-injury, and the Matthew Elvidge Trust.

Mr Surtees was son of John Surtees, the only man to have won world titles on both two and four wheels.

Residents invited to sell unwanted items

A COMMUNAL garage sale is being held in Lydd, with 69 houses invited to sell unwanted items from their front gardens.

The annual event usually sees between 25-30 homes take part and this would be its fourth successive year.

Browsers are promised a bargain and it is hoped everyone will enjoy the atmosphere while selling unwanted bits and pieces.

There will also be collection buckets to raise funds for the Kent Air Ambulance.

The sale takes place at Sycamore Close, Lydd on Saturday, July 3, starting at 9am.

Festival fun in great outdoors

DEAL FESTIVAL

Friday, July 2, to Saturday, July 17
Various Venues

FROM classical music to horticultural delights, this year's Deal Festival offers a diverse programme of events.

Fittingly enough, this summer festival opens with outdoor concerts by three very different Kent bands. On Friday night, acclaimed soul, rhythm and blues band Rubber Biscuit (pictured top) will get the party started on the Pier Apron in Deal at 7pm, followed by performances from folk group Cocos Lovers and the Canterbury Christ Church Big Band on the seafront from 10.30am on Saturday.

Young performers will have the chance to display their skills at Deal Town Hall at 3pm and the entertainment continues with a concert by the European Union Chamber Orchestra at St George's Church at 7.30pm, which includes sonnets read by former Poet Laureate, Sir Andrew Motion.

Sunday's line-up includes a festival mass at St Andrew's Church at 10am, the Sol Trio at the Royal Hotel at 7.30pm and three young musicians from the famous Yehudi Menuhin Music School at Pines Calyx at 7pm.

Film fans can enjoy Dame Kiri te Kanawa's performance in Don Giovanni at the Astor Theatre on Monday, while Tuesday's concert at St Mary's Church in Walmer could prove to be a poignant one, as John Georgiadis will give his last performance as a professional violinist with the Cinque Ports Ensemble.

Consortium 5 Recorders will appear at St Andrew's Church at 1pm on Tuesday and give a masterclass after the concert.

Next Wednesday's highlights include a piano recital by Sviatoslav Antipov at St George's Church and an outdoor performance of The Merry Wives of Windsor at the Salutation Gardens in Sandwich.

Next week, audiences can choose from a classical concert by students from Canterbury Christ Church University, an evening with renowned raconteur Denis Norden and a concert from the Guildhall School of Music and Drama Jazz Orchestra.

Those who would like to find out more about the area's literary connections can join a guided tour by Janet Alcock, volunteer co-ordinator at South Forelands Lighthouse, as she leads a four-hour circular walk along the White Cliffs of Dover on Saturday, July 10. On the same day, music fans can also enjoy concerts by the Pfizer Wind Orchestra and the famous Grimethorpe Colliery Band.

On Sunday, July 11, the festival will focus on Sandwich. Sir Roger Manwood's School Jazz Band will perform at Sandwich Quay at 11am, followed by a Champagne reception at the Bell Hotel, a three-course lunch and music from soprano Sarah Hale and harpist Alex Rider.

There will also be a tour of the Salutation Gardens with the head gardener and more music from the Pfizer Wind Orchestra.

Meanwhile, the Band of the Royal Marines take to the Walmer Bandstand at 2pm and gipsy jazz band Djangles will play at the Royal Hotel in Deal at 7.30pm.

The second week of the festival features concerts by the Kosmos Trio (above), the City of London Sinfonia and the Alea String Quartet. Sir Willard White will explore the repertoire and life of the iconic Paul Robeson and the Merry Wives of Windsor can once again be seen at the Pines Gardens in St Margaret's at Cliffe. THE CARETAKER

Saturday, July 3, Theatre Royal Margate

ONE of Harold Pinter's most captivating plays will be performed by London Classic Theatre this weekend.

Half a century after it was first performed, The Caretaker still has the power to intrigue, shock and fascinate audiences. Pinter is one of this country's most acclaimed, studied and enduringly popular playwrights, with The Caretaker being widely considered one of his finest works.

When elderly drifter Davies is taken in by kindly Aston, he soon settles into his new home in a squalid attic. He develops an uneasy peace with the well-meaning and vulnerable younger man, but their equilibrium is disturbed by the arrival of Aston's smarter brother, Mick.

As the past emerges and the three men reveal more about themselves, they embark on a battle of wits that will have far-reaching consequences.

Pinter wrote 29 plays, including The Birthday Party, Old Times, The Homecoming and Betrayal.

The play, suitable for ages 14 and above, starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £14/£12 from 0845 130 1786, 01227 787787 or www.theatreroyalmargate.com.

PALACE OF VARIETIES

Friday, July 2, to Saturday, July 10, Tower Theatre, Folkestone

CELEBRATE the colourful history of variety with the latest show from Folkestone-Hythe Operatic and Dramatic Society.

Palace of Varieties takes the audience on an entertaining journey through the evolution of variety, starting out with its humble beginnings in the music halls of the 1850s.

Find out how a typical night in the pub might have played out, followed by increasingly ambitious and skilful acts.

Audiences can look forward to the comedy of Les Dawson, Tommy Cooper and Max Miller, all performed with tremendous skill by members of FHODS.

Part of the Hythe Festival, Palace of Varieties features musical direction by Richard Baulch and has been devised by Maxine Burrows, who has a long history of work in the entertainment industry.

She started out as 'Terry Juvenile' and has also appeared in professional pantomime in Drury Lane, London, worked as a Tiller girl in the 60s and appeared as a film extra.

The show can be seen this Friday and Saturday and again from July 7 to 10. Tickets cost £9/£8. Book online at www.towertheatrefolkestone.co.uk or call 01303 223925.

LOUNGE ON THE FARM

Friday, July 9, to Sunday, July 11, Merton Farm, Canterbury

NOW in its fifth year, Lounge on the Farm is celebrating with an even more diverse line-up than ever.

Alongside Martha and the Vandellas, Toots and the Maytals and DJ Yoda, festival-goers can look forward to a fantastic headline act on the Friday. Disco fever will rule when New York band, Hercules and the Love Affair, bring their sound to the Cow Shed.

Andrew Butler's group are sure to get the party going on the main stage with their blend of proto-acid house grooves and strings in the style of Gamble and Huff. Following the success of their 2008 album, the band will be presenting a mixture of classic tunes and some new tracks to keep revellers on their toes.

Electro-pop act Example will be marking the release of his second album, Won't Go Quietly, with what promises to be a barn-storming performance at Lounge on the Farm on the Friday, while musical voyager Jah Wobble headlines the Furthur Stage on the Saturday.

Tickets start at £40 for an adult day ticket and £20 for children. For more information visit www.loungeonthefarm.co.uk.

MICHAEL LAW

Sunday, July 4, Dominican Priory, Canterbury

ENJOY an evening of elegant music from the Art Deco era when Michael Law performs in concert.

The latest in the series of Sunday night concerts from the Friends of the Marlowe features the accomplished pianist and singer, one of the series' most popular entertainers.

With Sunday's concert, Mad About the 30s, he will regale the audience with a selection of tunes from Cole Porter, Irving Berlin, Noel Coward and other artists from that golden musical era. As one of Law's favourite periods, the 30s provide the inspiration for an uplifting concert of elegant classics.

Law is the founder and musical director of the acclaimed Piccadilly Dance Orchestra, but he has also become a highly-regarded solo performer.

Prestigious venues have included the Savoy Hotel, Claridges, Pizza in the Park, the Purcell Room and Cunard ocean liners. His previous appearances for the Friends of the Marlowe have been sell-out successes.

Tickets cost £13, including a glass of wine and concessions are available. To book contact the Canterbury Visitor Information Centre on 01227 787787.

OUR HOUSE

Thursday, July 8, to Saturday, July 10, Winter Gardens, Margate

THE music of Madness propels along a gripping story of two potential lives in the hit musical, Our House.

Regency Productions presents the award-winning show next week, with performances from a talented young cast. Named after one of the ska-pop band's biggest hits, the musical is a toe-tapping journey through their repertoire, with a compelling storyline.

When 16-year-old Joe Casey tries to impress his sweetheart with a petty crime on his birthday, he faces an agonising choice. As the police arrive, should he stay and face the music or take to his heels?

The show reveals the consequences of both choices, taking the audience on a Sliding Doors-style exploration of the very different turns Joe's life could have taken.

The cast includes Matt Sullivan as Joe along with Parisa Tarjomani, Daniella Surridge, Nathan Steven, Alex Hammond, Zahra Tarjomani and Ruby Sigurdardottir.

Performances start at 7.30pm daily with a 2.30pm matinee on Saturday and tickets cost £10. To book call the box office on 01843 292795/296111 or visit www.margatewintergardens.co.uk.

Hop Farm tickets still up for grabs

STAR-STUDED: Music legends Ray Davies and Van Morrison will play at the Hop Farm

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

A NUMBER of tickets remain on sale for this weekend's star-studded Hop Farm Festival.

The Paddock Wood two-dayer, which kicks-off this Friday, will see a host of music legends perform in front of up to 50,000 fans.

Bob Dylan, Van Morrison, Blondie and former Kinks frontman Ray Davies are among the Hop Farm bill's biggest hitters and will be ably supported by ex-Libertines singer Peter Doherty, The Magic Numbers and folk starlet Laura Marling.

The festival's second stage features the likes of Devendra Banhart, Tunng, Villagers and Kent's own blues guitarist Pete Molinari.

And the third Bread & Roses stage will include The Ruskins, Hoodlums and Billy Vincent.

It will also host a comedy show hosted by Sion James and featuring Bob Mills, Keith Platt and Ian Cognito while a campsite stage will also give acoustic artists the chance to get up close and personal to their fans.

In total, more than 100 bands, singers and performers will appear at the Hop Farm Festival during the two days.

Hop Farm chief Vince Power, who founded the Mean Fiddler Empire and has helped establish Glastonbury and Reading as globally-renowned events, is confident that this year's festival will be one to remember.

He said: "It is finding the niche for the festival. I said when starting the Hop Farm that every festival I have done has taken between three and five years to get on the festival map and for people to see it as here to stay. I think with the Hop Farm having legends mixed with great new acts like Mumford & Sons and Laura Marling is the way to go."

"It has a great location and the great thing is that it is a festival for that area. We are selling tickets down to Brighton and up to London, but people are not coming

Battle scars bear witness to France's wartime heritage

■ BY ED HILL

IT is more than 90 years since the Battle of the Somme but the landscape is still etched with the aftermath of an industrial form of war that led to death on a scale never seen before.

Yet, in just a couple of days, you can get an insight into the conflict and explore one of the most convenient regions of France to get to from Kent.

The battlefields are about an hour and a half drive south from Calais. A good place to start is the town of Peronne. The town is the location of the Museum of the First World War (Historial de la Grande Guerre). Housed in a modern extension to the walls of an old château, its exhibitions show the impact the war had on all the countries involved.

The town of Albert, 12 miles away, was taken and retaken by the German and Allied forces during the Somme campaign. The town centre is dominated by the rebuilt Basilica of Notre-Dame. On top of its dome stands a large golden statue of an angel holding the baby Jesus. During the conflict the statue became an icon for both armies. The Germans believed whoever toppled it would ultimately lose the war.

Next to the Basilica, in underground tunnels used by townspeople to shelter from harm down the ages, is the Somme 1916 Museum. It is full of weapons gathered from nearby fields and you can buy objects such as rusty helmets and hand grenades from the museum shop.

Ed Hill was a guest of the Somme Tourist Board (www.visit-somme.com) and travelled with P&O Ferries, P & O Ferries, SeaFrance or Euro Tunnel, Dover to Calais, prices from £44-£55 for a two-day return with car. The Hotel Les Corderies (www.lescorderies.com) is on the coast in the Baie de Somme or try Mercure Cathedral Hotel in Amiens (www.mercure.com). Ed had lunch at the Hotel De la Basilique in Albert (www.hotelde labasilique.fr) and dinner at Le Quai Restaurant in Amiens (www.restaurant-le-quai.com). Musée Somme 1916, Albert (www.musee-somme-1916.eu), Historial De La Grande Guerre, Peronne (www.historial.org), Thiepval memorial and visitor centre (www.thiepval@historial.org), Beaumont-Hamel Memorial (www.vac-acc.gc.ca), Lochnagar Crater (www.lochnagarcrater.org).

The city of Amiens, with its Gothic cathedral and lively nightlife, makes a good base from which to explore.

On day two, visit the Lochnagar mine crater at La Boisselle. The immense power of modern explosives can be seen at this massive hole in the ground; the result of an explosion on July 1, 1916, marking the start of the Battle of the Somme by the British.

Nearby is the Newfoundland Memorial in Beaumont-Hamel. Many men from the region, which at the time was independent from Canada, volunteered for the war. The trenches have been left as they were since the conflict ended and Canadian students on government-funded sabbaticals act as tour guides.

Finally, the massive Anglo-French memorial at Thiepval designed by Edwin Lutyens is a must-visit. The 150ft tall structure commemorates more than 70,000 men from the Commonwealth and French forces.

The Somme Region is still dealing with the aftermath of the conflict. Hundreds of tonnes of shells are dug up in its fields each year and army cemeteries can be found round the bends of many of its country roads, but it is a well worth a visit to remind us when the nightmare of war becomes a reality.

MOTORS NEWS

Cable's hybrid message

BUSINESS Secretary Vince Cable officially launched the start of production of the Auris Hybrid during a visit to Toyota's Derbyshire plant.

It is the Japanese car giant's first hybrid to be built in Europe and Mr Cable said it was "a strong endorsement of the UK as a manufacturing base for the next generation of cars".

The new five-door hatchback arrived at Toyota dealers this week priced from £18,950 – it is the first and only full hybrid in the competitive C-Segment or Ford Focus class.

Mini changes hoped to make big deal to sales

BMW'S Mini has received a radical makeover for sales from August, including the line-up's first road tax-exempt sub-100g CO2/km model.

With the recent good weather some buyers will also be tempted by the first diesel convertible version, bringing a potential average of 70mpg and low emissions (105g/km of CO2) to open-top motoring.

The changes include some cosmetic detailing that make the car appear lower and wider and coincide with the imminent launch of the brand's first five-door model and soft-roader, the Countryman.

New Juke gets unboxed

BAILEYS Canterbury Nissan previews the all-new Juke crossover at its Westminster Road dealership on July 9. Orders can be placed on the night – official sales start on September 24.

Part rugged SUV, part funky sports car, the Juke (priced from £12,795) is pitched as a distinctive alternative to conventional hatchbacks – and it is British designed and built.

Baileys' dealer principal Brian Smith said: "We've already seen tremendous response to the Juke, but this is the first time customers can see a full-size car first-hand."

ON THE PROWL: Despite its closest rival the Nissan Qashqai having sharper handling, Peugeot's 3008 crossover offers great interior stowage, heads-up display and Grip Control

Lion roars a challenge to Qashqai generation

PEUGEOT'S lion logo is roaring as the market is wowed by the stunning new RCZ Coupé halo car.

But the pivotal moment for the French brand's new found assurance was the launch of the 3008 crossover (priced from £16,695) last year – a riposte to the successful Nissan Qashqai.

The Nissan's style and drive is still the sharper and you can buy a seven-seater, but the 3008's interior packaging and stowage is clever and the Peugeot's quality cabin – with its chrome and alloy detailing – is a big plus.

And there's a versatile two-part tailgate; the lift-up section allows easy loading of light items, while the lower half enables big stuff to slide in while doubling as 'grandstand' seating at outdoor events or camping.

A movable boot floor and readily accessible seat back releases add to the 'stuffability'.

Rear legroom is not massive, but the front seatbacks are scalloped for the knees of those behind and the flat cabin floor affords leg space for the middle passenger.

The big talking point though is the head-up display with speed and distance alert, as fitted to flagship Exclusive models like the 110bhp 1.6-litre diesel (£20,595) tested here.

Standard fit on the Exclusive is a panoramic roof with electric sunblind; the 3008's cabin is light and airy anyway, but this feature is an all-round enlightening experience.

And so to the much discussed optional Grip Control, Peugeot's alternative to the all-wheel drive clout available – at a price – on some rivals.

Grip Control is a sophisticated traction control for the front driving wheels, with various terrain settings via a simple dial. I would have been cynical had I not seen a Peugeot 3008 used as an improvised glider launcher – see the video at Motors TV at www.carsforkent.co.uk.

At £450 it's also a lot cheaper than a 4x4 equivalent, although Peugeot will no doubt contradict itself when it launches a proposed hybrid 3008, with a diesel for the front wheels and electric power driving the rear.

While you might forego Grip Control though, don't do the same for Dynamic Roll Control – omitted from lesser models in the 3008 range.

This overcomes the car's relatively high riding position and soft suspension and delivers a taut driving experience.

PROPERTY NEWS

Fragile recovery still in infancy, says consultant

PROPERTY sales figures have been changing on a monthly basis with any signs of recovery "still in their infancy," according to independent property investment consultancy Ducaliam.

The firm's senior consultant, Andrew Styles, said: "Overall, I am of the opinion that the market still remains fragile with house prices susceptible to market volatility."

"The green shoots of recovery that many predicted last year are still just as green and largely in their infancy."

However, he added that the market will definitely recover at some point, adding that it is unclear how long this recovery would take.

Meanwhile, recent figures from the National Association of Estate Agents indicate that the number of house hunters registering to look for property increased from 274 in March to 277 in April.

The number of sales agreed across the month remained strong at an average of eight per estate agency, which is the same as in March.

About 21 per cent of sales were made to first-time buyers, the data revealed.

Singles take over first-time market

SINGLE people now outnumber married couples as first time buyers, according to new research published this week.

Mortgage provider Santander found that over the last five years, 37 per cent of first-time buyers were singletons, compared to 29 per cent who were married.

This is the first time single people have outnumbered married couples as first-time buyers.

In the 1970s, 85 per cent of first time buyers were married.

Santander said it was "surprised" to find that 29 per cent of first-time buyers are married.

"This means some 716,400 people waited to find their spouse before taking the first step towards home ownership, showing traditional values die hard," a spokesman for the mortgage provider said.

SITTINGBOURNE-based Swale Heating has welcomed the Government's recently announced energy bill, so long as it results in real savings for home-owners and the environment.

Prime Minister David Cameron said he wants his government to be 'the greenest ever'. He claims the Bill will offer a Green Deal to encourage home energy efficiency improvements.

The company said it was looking for the new administration to provide a positive lead.

Matthew Edwards, Swale Heating's sales director, said: "The recent boiler scrappage scheme introduced earlier this year effectively helped reduce carbon footprints and energy bills. It was a shame it was not continued."

"We replaced hundreds of old G-rated or worse, inefficient boilers across the South East under the scheme, which enabled householders to claim £400 against a new A-rated model. But it is clear there are many more gas-guzzling boilers that need replacing."

"We have been running our own version of the scrappage scheme since the Government incentive ended, which offers a £400 discount on all new boilers until the end of June 2010."

"There is no doubt that a new boiler helps to reduce gas bills by about a third."

Mr Edwards said he was optimistic for the future and was committed to making sure his company does all it can to promote environmental awareness.

He added: "We hope the new Bill will see home-owners in a position again where they can make both their hot water and heating systems more efficient with government help."

"The reintroduction of the boiler scrappage scheme would be extremely positive, judging by the response to the last scheme and the effect it can have on energy saving."

Cautious welcome for Cameron's Green Deal

GREEN MOVE: Replacing your gas-guzzling boiler could cut your energy bills by up to a third, say Swale Heating

Pension schemes back property

GOOD news for the market this week as a third of UK pension schemes that already invest in property say they will buy more, according to asset management experts.

Nearly two thirds of the 166 pension schemes questioned have exposure to property, 36 per cent of whom said they would possibly be increasing their weighting, while 57 per cent said they would be maintaining their current exposure.

Of the schemes questioned that do not currently invest in property, 35 per cent said they were actively considering it.

Andrew Smith, group head of property at Aberdeen Asset Management, said: "Renewed interest in property as an asset class is not surprising as investors are looking to diversify their equity and fixed income exposure."

"The recovery of the UK property market continues, with strong investment demand continuing to drive a rise in capital values."

Those schemes not looking to invest in property cited the lack of liquidity and the perceived risks of investing in property among the reasons.

Mr Smith continued: "Property's role as an inflation hedge is attractive given the possibility of inflation picking up in the medium term. However, the industry needs to communicate with investors to address their concerns, particularly about liquidity and the perceived risks associated with property investment."

CRICKET

BY TOM HOWARD

Kent League Division Two

Ashford Town 1st XI v Folkestone 1st XI

FOLKESTONE were thoroughly outplayed in all departments at the weekend, as they slumped to a 141-run defeat to Ashford.

The home side won the toss and elected to bat which proved to be the correct decision, as their top order dominated the first half of the game. Despite losing the wicket of Simon Taylor for a well made 24, Ashford piled on the runs to post a score of 261 for Folkestone to chase.

Skipper Liam Tegg had the measure of the lacklustre Folkestone bowling attack and smashed 73 before being dislodged by Andy Bray. Bray struck again shortly after, bowling Luke Reeves for 15 as they hoped to stop the flow of runs.

However, Ashford picked themselves up with Kyle McAlister (55) and Gary Sutton (40) adding to the rapidly increasing total. Once the pair were dismissed, the run rate declined and Ashford finished their 50 overs with the score 261 for 8.

With 262 needed for victory, Folkestone knew they would need their top order to attack from the outset, but their reply started poorly.

First David Miles was out for just 12 and Stuart Graham was run out when well-placed on 32. The run out sparked a collapse as next to follow was Himanshu Waingankar and Folkestone never really recovered from his loss as all seven of their remaining batsmen failed to clock up more than 17 runs between them. Ashford's Mohsin Raza, Tegg, Taylor and Craig Buckham continued to impress with the ball and they managed to clinch victory by bowling out Folkestone for only 120 after 32.4 overs.

Bad day at the office as Folkestone slump

LIMP DISPLAY: Folkestone's bowlers failed to make the Ashford batsmen struggle in the same way they did in their innings

LOCAL CRICKET ROUND-UP

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION ONE

Sandwich Town 1st XI v Hythe 1st XI

POWERFUL batting was only enough to secure a winning draw for Sandwich Town against Hythe in Division One.

David Scoggins hit 86 as the home side started strongly, but Vishaul Singh was the star of the show as he scored 110 before falling to Lochan Blunden.

James Watson (105) then became the day's second centurion as Hythe attempted to chase down 301, but with the target too distant, they closed on 220 for 6.

Betteshanger Colliery Welfare 1st XI v Walmer 1st XI

ANDREW McNicholas was the star of the show for Betteshanger Colliery Welfare as he put in a complete performance with both bat and ball to see his side home by seven wickets.

Walmer scored just 149, thanks in the main to Daniel Giles' 53, with McNicholas leading the way with the ball, claiming figures of 3 for 34 from 12 overs.

In reply, Betteshanger coasted towards victory with more than 12 overs to spare as McNicholas cracked 13 boundaries and a six on his way to an unbeaten 74.

KENT LEAGUE DIVISION FIVE

Deal Victoria & Barns Close 1st XI v Bromley Town 1st XI

A LACKLUSTRE performance with the bat was Deal Victoria's reason for losing to Bromley Town by five wickets at the weekend.

The home side failed to take up their allocation of overs having been bowled out for a below-par 185. Alex Taylor was chief tormentor with figures of 6 for 31.

Graham McNamara picked up two wickets to check Bromley's advances, but in the end the home side just didn't have enough runs to play with.

KENT REGIONAL LEAGUE 1B EAST

Dover Cosmopolitans 1st XI v Westbrook 1st XI

HOW Dover Cosmopolitans must have wished Packet Smith and John Stokes had been in earlier. Chasing down Westbrook's 264 to win, the home side slumped to 102 for 5 before an 87-run partnership between Smith and skipper Stokes gave the Dover score an air of respectability. Smith hit 63 and Stokes an unbeaten 47 as the home side ended up 218 for 6 – 45 runs shy of victory.

Hayes gets ball rolling to build a new Dover squad

FOOTBALL

BY TOM HOWARD

WHITES manager Martin Hayes is due to hold lengthy discussions with four players he hopes will join him at Dover Athletic this week.

The 44-year-old boss is keen to start his squad-building process as the club are behind schedule following a month of upheaval at Crabble.

With only 11 players confirmed as part of next season's squad, Hayes is in need of reinforcements and his search for new signings starts this week.

He said: "Things are progressing and I should be speaking to at least three or four players. These are players I know and I hope the discussions go well. I can't say too much about them as I do not want to alert other clubs. I hope to sign at least five or six players for next season and we should have a round nine or ten coming down for pre-season."

While Hayes is hoping to strengthen his side, new contract offers for two of last season's squad have been put on hold. Sammy Moore and Dean Hill were offered new deals by former manager Andy Hessenthaler last month, but neither have put pen to paper. The pair have played a pivotal role in the club's rise up the non-league pyramid, but new boss Hayes wants to see them in action in pre-season before he offers them a new contract.

ON HOLD: Dean Hill, left, and Sammy Moore, right, will have to impress in pre-season to earn a new contract at Dover

He said: "The contract offers have not been withdrawn, but have been put on ice. I have inherited a squad of 12 players and I want to know who I am signing before offering new contracts. I have asked the pair to come in for pre-season so I can have a look at them and I know Dean will definitely be coming along to that to show me what he is all about."

With player/assistant Nicky Southall the latest to leave the club to join Gillingham, Hayes will bring in Paul Joynes to become his new assistant manager. Joynes worked alongside him during his six years in charge at fellow Conference South side Bishop's Cleeve.

Elsewhere at the club, midfield playmaker Jon Wallis has signed a new one-year contract at the club.

NEW COACH: Darren Molloy joins Folkestone RFC

Former Wasp Molloy to coach Folkestone

FOLKESTONE RFC have brought in former London Wasps prop Darren Molloy to become the club's head coach for next season.

The 37-year-old, who notched up more than 300 appearances for former Premiership champions Wasps, will not only guide Folkestone's 1st XV in London 3 South East, but head up a new academy at the club.

Molloy is a familiar name in Kent rugby after coaching spells at Canterbury and Westcombe Park. While at Canterbury he led them to their first Kent Cup for 30 years in 2005, before leaving for Westcombe Park where he helped them to promotion to National League 2 in 2007.

Alongside his role as head coach, Molloy, who enjoyed a professional career with Leinster, London Irish and Gloucester as well as Wasps, will help identify and coach promising young rugby players at the club's newly-formed rugby academy.

He will take charge of his first training session as head coach on Thursday.

Striker returns to Reachfields

FOOTBALL

HYTHE Town's transfer business is complete for the summer, following the return of Gary Mickelborough to Reachfields after a season with Ramsgate.

The striker becomes manager Scott Porter's third and final signing of the close-season, with Lee Shearer and Brendon Cass already signed up for a crack at the Kent League title.

Porter said Mickelborough had been a target since the end of last season and admitted his new arrivals would settle for nothing less than promotion to the Ryman League.

He said: "We only want to win the league and you've got to attract quality from higher leagues to do that. These players have stepped down a level and they only want to spend one year in the Kent League.

"We've been speaking to [Gary] all summer and we did the deal on Saturday so he's all signed and ready to go. He's determined to score the goals to get us out of this league, the same as Brendon Cass. The squad's complete, I don't need to do anything else. I needed a centre-half and two strikers and I've got that."

Mickelborough, who joins his new teammates for the first session of pre-season training tomorrow night, scored 17 goals in league and cup last season as the Rams finished 14th in Ryman South.
